KYOCERA UNIMERCO Tooling A/S integrates business operations and core areas of Weber Technologies GmbH – Strategic investment in CVD diamond coatings across Kyocera Group

Neuss/Potsdam, 30th September 2025. KYOCERA UNIMERCO Tooling A/S, headquartered in Sunds, Denmark, and part of the global Kyocera Corporation (Kyoto, Japan), announces the integration of business operations and core areas of Weber Technologies GmbH (Potsdam, Germany), effective September 1, 2025. The business will be integrated into KYOCERA UNIMERCO Tooling GmbH, based in Neuss. Weber Technologies is a recognised specialist in CVD diamond coatings. The acquisition is a strategic technology investment that strengthens Kyocera's ability to expand CVD diamond coatings across multiple industries and business units worldwide.

"Integrating the technology into the Kyocera Group not only strengthens our innovation capabilities within Europe, but it also opens exciting opportunities across the global Kyocera organization. CVD diamond coating technology has significant potential to enhance performance and efficiency in industries ranging from industrial tools to electronics and medical technology", says Simon Sondrup, Group Director, KYOCERA Unimerco Tooling A/S.

A key element is continuity: Dr Frank-Reinhard Weber, founder and former owner of Weber Technologies, will join Kyocera as Head of Diamond Coating Technology, ensuring stability and expertise in Potsdam. The existing team will also stay in place and be strengthened to support future growth. Dr Frank-Reinhard Weber explains: "Remaining a part of the team and continuing the journey together was very important to me. Together with Kyocera's global resources, we can now bring CVD diamond coating technology to a much broader range of applications than ever before."

This acquisition highlights Kyocera's long-term strategy of continuous technology investments that deliver value across industries, strengthen competitiveness, and provide future-oriented solutions.
